TAFT AND FORAKER

Long Shot at Future Possibilities for the Presidency.

(Mail Special to the Advertiser.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 5.—It is indeed a far cry to the next Presidential election, but almost every week some little thing happens here in Washington indicating that different Republicans are grooming for Roosevelt's shoes. Aspirants are really shaping their careers with the hope that the moving current will come close enough to bear them within reach of the high honor.

Possibly the most significant development in that connection since Congress met, has been with Senator Foraker of Ohio. He has been boomed fitfully in times gone by, for he has been a distinguished figure in every Republican national convention since that of 1884, when James G. Blaine of Maine bore away the nomination. An attractive orator and vigorous personage in general politics, Senator Foraker is known to the entire country. The popularity with which Senator Taft was hailed when invited to President Roosevelt's Cabinet seemed for a time to eclipse Mr. Foraker. They both come from the same State and an impression that Mr. Taft might be a Presidential possibility put a quietus on whatever Foraker talk there had been. But among the knowing people here Secretary Taft does not seem to have stirred the enthusiasm of the country intensely. He is as charming a man personally as ever sat at the President's council table. The newspaper correspondents, who to some extent shape the popular sentiment regarding public men, admire his frankness and general friendly attitude. And yet Mr. Taft's speeches in the campaign are not regarded as manifesting great capabilities. He failed badly in framing the administrative bill for the Philippines. It was so loosely drawn that Senators found it full of dangerous loopholes. It was practically redrawn in Senator Allison's committee room with Secretary Taft as an onlooker.

Of course his ambition is for the Supreme bench and it is thought altogether probable that President Roosevelt will appoint him should a vacancy occur. He recently wrote a letter to some inquiring friends that he was not thinking about the Presidency in 1908 in any serious way, but all candidates do that at such an early stage.

On the other hand Senator Foraker has apparently been trying to conciliate powerful influences in his own State of Ohio. Correctly or incorrectly, his efforts have been interpreted as indicating an intention to secure the ultimate support of the Ohio delegation to the next national convention. The Senator also has the political friendship of President Roosevelt, although whether he will have this to an extent that President Roosevelt will help him to delegates is another question. Before Senator Hanna, his Ohio colleague, died, Mr. Foraker was taking the President's part. It was often represented that Senator Hanna did not approve of the President's course in a given instance, but Senator Foraker was almost invariably on such occasions found taking the other side. Then came Senator Hanna's unexpected death and the President has been disposed to stand by Senator Foraker in patronage matters, rather than with the opposing Ohio faction. Next to Senator Lodge of Massachusetts Senator Foraker is now regarded as the President's chief spokesman on the floor of the Senate.

SENATE TO HAVE TWO CANDIDATES.

So it seems that for the next four years the Senate is to have two prospective candidates for the Presidency. Although Mr. Fairbanks will cease to be a Senator when he resigns next March he will virtually be of the Senate as its presiding officer. There is no secret about his aspirations to the nomination. He made a splendid impression in his long speaking tours of the last campaign. It is said that he is about to inaugurate a literary bureau at Indianapolis to quietly further his candidacy during the next four years. Like Senator Foraker he is a native of Ohio, but has passed most of his life in Indiana. Senator Foraker is a veteran of the Civil War and if he lives till 1908 will be 62 years old. Senator Fairbanks has a little advantage of him in years, being now 52, so that in 1908 he will be 56. Both were born on a farm, as they are careful to say in their Congressional biographies.

But while the Senate will have two candidates for the Presidency the Cabinet, as matters look now, will have three candidates. Secretary Shaw of Iowa, who will be even 60 years old in 1908, has had a lightning rod up for three or four years and has not taken it down. Like Foraker, he has been Governor of his home State two terms and is one of the most effective stumpers in the party. It was generally supposed that President Roosevelt took him into the Cabinet to preclude his becoming a Presidential candidate in 1904. He has quite as wide an acquaintance as either Foraker or Fairbanks and possesses popular traits. Secretary Shaw will remain after February 1, 1906. He is said to have an ambition to serve an even four years there, which he will not have completed until the date mentioned.

CORTELYOU'S CAREER.

The new Postmaster General, Mr. Cortelyou, who has risen in a little over nine years from the place of a clerk in that department to be secretary and confidante of two Presidents, Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor and then national chairman, is known to have Presidential aspirations. The Presidential bee began to buzz in his bonnet some time last autumn, or rather it was then that some of his friends knew for the first time that he was looking forward to such a bright culmination of his political career. He will have many well wishers, although it is problematical how the fastidious politicians of his home State of New York will take to such a proposition. It is quite probable that among the five mentioned President Roosevelt will be more kindly disposed to Cortelyou. He stands for the ideas that Mr. Roosevelt stands for.

It is an old axiom that candidates for President are never chosen from either the Cabinet or Senate. Should that hold true none of the five will be called four years hence. But axioms and precedents are frequently disregarded in politics, as the recent nomination and election of President Roosevelt abundantly demonstrates. Benjamin Harrison came very near to smashing one part of the axiom, but he had retired from the Senate when he was nominated for the Presidency.

No one can tell what the exigencies of politics during the next four years may bring forth. Some young Lochinvar may arise out of the West whose name is now unknown outside the boundaries of his own state. But all the wise acres in Washington think the next contest for the Republican nomination will be fierce. Men are preparing for the event as though they fully expected as much.

AN EDITOR'S OPINION.—John S. Dawes, Esq., editor and proprietor Guardian and Star, Hokitika, New Zealand, said: "I have found Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a very valuable medicine, having received great benefit from its use when suffering from a cold, and as a preventive for croup in children its excellent properties have been testified in my family." PINKHAM REPORT WAS NOT ENDORSED BY LABOR

One of your most intelligent and well-informed members replied: "The Chinese."

From that moment until I read the report for the approval of your committee, I intentionally refrained from mentioning the Chinese, and in no instance can anyone truthfully recall any utterance of mine naming the Chinese.

Gentlemen, I too had some hopes of an indigenous population. I hope so now, but the practicability of the possibility to my mind is far too distant to meet the present situation now or in the near future.

Time must be given or we are liable to wreck the whole commercial, political and social fabric.

Through the efforts of the governor in part, and I am not immodest when I say through strenuous efforts on my own part, labor has an opportunity never before presented in the history of the world and that is to join equally with capital on a specific understanding to together solve the labor and, incidentally, the political and social conditions pertaining to the Hawaiian islands. You have not only equal opportunity but your associates are to furnish the funds for the experiment.

If you reject what has been secured for you, your friends will feel they cannot depend on your co-operation but must struggle with these problems, which will not down, sinless-handed.

I trust no such monumental folly will prevail.

This report will unquestionably be placed before:
John Hay Secretary of State;
Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner General of Immigration;
Samuel Gompers, President Federation of Labor;
J. K. Kalamianale, Delegate to Congress;

The Chinese Minister, Washington;
The Japanese Minister, Washington.
These men will judge your action on a broad basis. They are competent to protect the mainland from any incursion of alien labor.

They are of sufficiently broad intelligence to appreciate the variation of conditions in our isolated, one-crop, little country.

I thank you for your attention and now submit the issue to your determination or so far as the action of the Honolulu Trades and Labor Council affects the problem.

An Enjoyable Outing.

The most attractive day's outing is that afforded by the excursion down the railroad line. The HALEIWA LIMITED, a first-class train, leaves Honolulu every Sunday morning at 8:22 o'clock making the run in two hours, the rate for round trip being only $2.00. From 10:22 a. m. until 8:10 p. m. is spent at the beautiful HOTEL HALEIWA, with fresh and salt water bathing, tennis, golf drives and walks shooting or fishing and you are back in town at 10:10 o'clock in the evening.

SPORTS BOXING AND WRESTLING TONIGHT

The entertainment tonight at the Honolulu Athletic Club will furnish an evening's pleasure that will be well worth enjoying. The Maile, Punahou and Honolulu Athletic Clubs have all joined and will put on an attractive bill in the shape of a smoker.

There will be a program of boxing, wrestling, music and funny stunts.

One of the principal attractions will be the Japanese wrestling. Four of the finest wrestlers in Honolulu have been engaged and they will struggle on the mat for supremacy. This will give the public a chance to witness this art at its best. Tommy, the little "cop," will referee the bouts and will see that everything is run off in good style.

Prof. Woods will meet Jack Weday in a four-round bout that promises to be well worth the price. Everyone knows Weday's ability with the mitts and with a clever fellow like Woods he should put up a great exhibition. Jack McFadden, the bantamweight champion of the islands, will meet Young Scott in a four-round "go"—this also should prove satisfactory to all.

This will be the first time that the news-boy nightingale has ever appeared in public and he will whistle some of his favorite selections.

Such men as John Ellis, Mike Patton and Ernest Kaai will furnish the music. There will also be a quintet club present.

In all a very interesting program has been arranged and a good time is promised to all who will spend one dollar to help "wind up" the past football season.

BASKETBALL AT HIGH SCHOOL

There will be two interesting games of basketball pulled off at the High School court this afternoon. The first game will be between the Kams and Normals. This game will start promptly at 4 o'clock. The Kams are the favorites and should win easily.

They will face each other as follows:

Kams—Forwards: Aea, Akui, Centers: Mundon, Kabele, Guards: Wai- au (Capt.), Lewis.

Normals—Forwards: Akeo, Akau, Centers: Jones (Capt.), Hanamaikai, Guards: Speckman, Peplowski.

The second game will be played between the High School and Punahou and promises to be a hotly contested affair from the toss-up. The Punahou with one game to their credit should stand the better chance to win although the H. S. has a fast team and may come out with colors flying. They will line-up as follows at 4:45 p. m.:

Punahou—Forwards: Roth, Taylor, Centers: Damon, Fisher, Guards: Goodale (Capt.), Waller.

High School—Forwards: Smith, Crews (Capt.), Centers: Smith, Robertson, Guards: Stone, Akau.

PIGSKIN BATTLE ROYAL TODAY

The Punahou and Mailes will meet today at 3:45 at the new Baseball Park. This will be the first meeting of these two teams this season and the hottest game of the series is expected.

The Puns are at present enjoying first place in the league race. They have won one game from the Iolani. Figuring from the "dope" book they should defeat the Mailes today. It is the unexpected that happens, however, and the Mailes may spring the unlooked-for surprise.

Both teams have been working hard for this game and are in fine shape.

Following is the standing of the teams:

	Played	Won	Lost	Draw
Mailes	1	0	0	1
Iolani	2	0	1	1

GOALS.

	For	Against	Points
Punahou	3	0	2
Mailes	2	2	1
Iolani	5	2	1

Modin to Fight McFadden.
